“ Dylan, you were the best cousin anyone could've asked for. I remember texting you until four in the morning about things like music and just life in general. I already miss playing videogames and going to the store with you when you would come over. You don't know how much you really meant to me as a friend and as a cousin. I miss you Dylan and I love you. And I look forward to seeing you in Heaven when my time comes in the future. Until then, I love you cousin.

“ The Eulogy written by Andrea King

Dylan,

When I heard my mom's voice on the phone that morning, I had a feeling that we had lost someone, but I never imagined it would be you. My heart broke as I realized what I lost and all the people who would be devastated by this. I didn't believe it was true and I'm still having trouble believing. Dylan, you were a gift and a light to all who knew you. The love that you were so willing to share shined off of you. Everyone you cared about could feel the love you gave whenever you were around. I have never met anyone who cared so much about the people he loved. I know that, as your older sister you looked up to me, and I hope I can make you as proud as I am of you. I'm proud to call someone as kind, loving, and good hearted as you, my brother. I'm proud that even after you left us, you were still helping people and close to 100 peoples' lives were changed by you. You being an organ donor demonstrates how much you loved and cared about others. Even those you didn't know, nor would ever meet. The memory of us that I have been replaying, since I learned you were gone, is when we took you to your first concert. It was a cold, rainy day in September, which didn't work out so well with the concert being at Verizon Wireless Amphitheater. Despite the fact that we were freezing and soaking wet, you stood outside with us all day, just so I could see my favorite bands. Towards the end of the show I kept looking over at you, to make sure you were having fun. Each time I did you were cheering, singing along, and smiling, obviously enjoying yourself. I'm so glad that I was able to share that experience with you, and give you a little of the happiness you so frequently gave others. I'm also glad that I have a memory to hold onto, to help ease the pain I'm going through now, and the pain that is yet to come. I know that you're in a better place now, but that doesn't change the fact that I miss you, Dylan, and I'll never stop. You will always be a part of my heart. I love you Dylan, today and forever. Until we meet again...##imported-begin##Andrea King (step-sister)##imported-end##
