“ My cousin Joe met Sue Kirchdorfer when she and I were students at Webster College. After they married and raised their family Joe became our family historian on his mother's side. Through the years he stayed in touch with info he gathered about our German heritage. He also updated us about his kids and, later, his grandkids. Most recently I corresponded with him about the upheavals in Florissant that made the national news. He enjoyed staying active and we both shared a love for biking. I was shocked and saddened to learn that he had died. My sympathy goes to his family. He was an honorable man and a fine cousin.

Thank you, Bobbie! I always loved looking at Mom's Webster yearbook and remember seeing your picture in it and knew you were Dad's cousin.

“Mr. Dierker was always a staple at Sunday mass. His smile and stature, even when I was a small child, made me feel good. Truly an irreplaceable parishioner, Mr. Dierker has touched my heart. May his reunion with his Maker and beautiful wife console you.
